“ Roy, was a dear friend, worked with him for several years, enjoyed playing golf and enjoyed his tremendous talent. On a business trip to New York City many years ago when western music was popular the band that was playing was less than desirable we told the waiter that we had someone who was better, of course they said if so let's see. Well Roy sang and got the biggest applause of the evening. He was so good at just everything. He will be missed, blessed to have known him.
