“ Chuck,

I know you would not have approved of my making our memories public, but in sharing them, I keep you with me a bit longer. So I hope you will forgive my selfishness. The years I spent in your life were full of learning experiences: I developed a keener sense of traditional design and color; I learned how to choose plants and flowers to create enviable landscapes, and I began to pay more attention to those aspects of me that you most appreciated, and that made you want me for a friend.

I am grateful that you were always honest and caring with me, and I am thankful that I was able to tell you how much I valued and appreciated and loved you while you were still here.
