“ Oh Lord, I honestly don't just have one specific memory. I have 10 years of being a guest in your home & getting the privilege to know you and your family, and 10 short years of picking on each other. I am very grateful I got to spend time with a man I looked to as a second father. I will never forget all the times Chrissy and I had to play our “rap crap” on the radio to the ball games, and the many trips to the fair, and skating rink. I wont ever forget watching football games with you & you explaining to me and Chrissy what the referee's were talking about, because we had absolutely no idea, or to hear you yelling at the football team because “they are idiots, & just need to run the d**n ball.”

Of course after I said it, it was brought up at least once while I was around ; when I said canalope tasted like air. Making fun of you for saying words funny. It's never going to be the same without you, but I'm thankful for the time I got with you.

Now I am kicking myself in the butt for it, I didn't tell you goodbye when I seen you in the hospital a few weeks ago, honestly because I was so “sure” I would see you again. God had other plans, but I told ya I'd see ya, & I will, one day. So goodbye for now Ronnie, I love ya & I'll see ya!
